We're seeing sensual curves sliding over sofas, bold geometric patterns splashing onto surfaces and bright brass gleaming from fixtures and fittings. Designers are adding a dose of modern minimalism to upgrade the look for today's tastes.

Why one designer loves Deco. "Art Deco feels elevated and can really dress up a space. It can be used in elegant ways in all types of homes," says San Francisco designer Lauren Nelson.

Art Deco icons to inspire: Erté, René Jules Lalique, Josef Hoffmann, Sonia Delaunay and Émile-Jacques Ruhlmann.

A modern rendition. Now subtle wall hues complement vibrant materials, and straighter lines offset flourishes. "It's a mix rather than a direct interpretation," says designer Vadim Maltsev, who works all over the world. "Materials have natural origins or feel rich, such as marble, silk, linen, precious woods and stones, along with brass and bronze."

Maltsev's Product Picks: Capital Lighting Hudson Chandelier, Benzara Bronze Stool, Safavieh Marquette Velvet Sofa

Pattern play. "That era of F. Scott Fitzgerald flapperesque design with chevrons and zigzags and curvilinear shapes is popping up in wallpaper and table lamps and fashion today," says Los Angeles designer Michael Berman.

Rich colors. "Opulent jewel tones, like peacock blue and violet, can infuse an Art Deco twist into a space," Nelson says. "Adding simple and traditional pieces can create balance while allowing the Art Deco elements to have the spotlight."

Nelson's Product Picks: Deny Designs Leaves Credenza, Leggett & Platt Calvados King Bed, Uttermost Silver Curves Mirror
